Try a Crop Top

Pick one that hits right below your bust—it's your smallest point and will give you a nice hourglass shape. Then, try pairing it with something high-waisted (like jeans or a pencil skirt). It's sexy, but you're only showing a bit of skin, so you'll still feel comfortable."

Rock White Jeans

Stay away from straight or bootcut styles—they can look a little mom-ish. A skinny pair with a higher-rise will offer you support in the tummy area. As for what to wear on top, white jeans can feel revealing, so I like a top that hits mid-hip for that extra bit of coverage."

H&M "Leather Pumps," $80; hm.com

Look Great In Shorts

Tap shorts with an elastic waistband are a must-have! You don't have to worry about muffin-top, and the floaty cut won't ride up. Try a pair that hits mid-thigh and wear them with a top that is cropped or can be tucked in. Showing your legs and waist makes you look better than oversized, body-hiding pieces do."
